

The changes to come

After so long it can hardly be denied that we are living a period of changes that will not leave anyone indifferent. While the population claims and manifests for global warming, among others; the real reason for everything, to what the human being is witnessing, will be present sooner or later and then, no one will have doubts about what is really happening and why.

Anyway, nobody believes anything without proof, and even so it is still difficult to make people see what they have in front of their own eyes; you just have to use logic and reason. ¿Why do I say this? It is very simple, when you go out to the street day after day; necessarily a human being has to notice that nothing is the same as before, the problem is that many people do not pay attention to all these changes, or they do not give importance to them, or they simply think that everything is normal.

The problem lies precisely here, our life has become so dull that nothing will change our way of thinking. The most disturbing thing is that even the disasters we are witnessing today are attributed to global warming; and therefore no one thinks that the cause may be due to factors that have nothing to do with our planet, meaning that for most everything is abnormally normal.

For a long time these changes have been taking place in an increasingly accelerated way, which means that our life as we know it is going to change, whether we want it to or not. But the changes are not only geophysical, but also at the social level. The discontent of the population in the face of political problems that, not only are not resolved, but also worsen over time and people suffer more and more from the lack of needs that they cannot supply due to lack of financial means. The current situation is living proof of what I say. I honestly do not know to what extent the human being is capable of supporting so much injustice and abuse, but what is clear is that this situation becomes more and more unsustainable.

Everything that happens today cannot be defined as isolated events, or that happen just because; everything has a very close relationship between each of them, everything obeys something greater than simple phenomena of any kind. The geophysical changes are every day more remarkable, even the most skeptical can no longer deny that everything is not the work of man. Changes are cyclical and nothing and no one can prevent them, we are going to have to go through them, for better or for worse.

I sincerely believe that people do not think that all this can happen in our time; none in current generations and taking into account that we live in what we say a modern society, which in my personal opinion is not modern at all, but it is just my opinion. In a modern society we would not have to suffer the calamities to which we are direct witnesses; like the pandemic that is devastating the world and people, many of these things should be part of a long forgotten past; but instead it seems that our past follows us like our own shadow, like a ghost that goes everywhere and nowhere.

In short, we are going to have to get used to the idea that these changes have already started some time ago and are going to change our way of life; but in reality it is more than a simple change.
